Safety of Eticam plant is debated

By Bob Slatte
Staff writer

Despite more than a half-dozen public hearings and a number of published reports over the past six years, officials of Eticam-Granite Inc. are having difficulty convincing their message to Granite City residents.

Questions regarding the proposed $10 million, 21-acre hazardous-waste treatment facility were unanswered under the bright lights of a television news camera and the skeptical stares of about 40 residents at Tuesday night's City Council meeting.

Eticam does not handle any biological or nuclear materials or PCPs, Vice President Austin Donnelly said.

The company reclaims gold, silver, platinum, copper and other metals from liquid waste generated by metal finishing, electronics, mining, photographic and electroplating industries. Instead of dumping its materials in landfills and water systems, Eticam recycles the metals and sells them to industrial manufacturers.

Attorney Raymond Reott, who represents Eticam, said the facility is "a positive thing for the environment" because it enables materials to be recycled.

With opponents saying the hazards they believe are connected with the plant are too great, Eticam

If a major explosion occurred at the Air Products plant along East 23rd Street, the crews of Granite City firefighters would not be able to respond, according to Fire Chief Jerry Wallace.

That's because, he said, the explosion could level the Fire Station on Madison Avenue, along with virtually everything else within a mile or two of the plant.

While Wallace is concerned about that possibility, he said it's not causing him to lose sleep. He said his department makes regular visits to the Air Products facility and has been impressed with its safety.

"They have a very well-trained staff and run a very tight ship. They are very safe," Wallace said. "I am concerned and have been impressed as professionals," Wallace said.

Explaining the difference between concern and worry, Wallace said, "If a guy crosses a bridge everyday, there is a real potential that one day he is going to get hit by a car as he crosses the street. That is a very real potential that must be dealt with, but it doesn't mean the guy should quit going to work."

So, Wallace said, people should be concerned about the Eticam-Granite hazardous-waste treatment plant but not worried.

He said people should be concerned about dangers to the environment and the potential for accidents.

Wallace said, "Not In My Back Yard" hysteria won't help anything and may compound problems.

Wallace said, from the point of view of the firefighter who would be first on the scene in an emergency, the proposed Eticam facility appears to be "far and above" any other industry in Granite City.

Wallace said he had talked

Kierski Madison treasurer

By Randy Vaughn
Staff writer

Former bank officer Frank Kierski has been named Madison city treasurer following the retirement of Fred Bathon on Tuesday.

Bathon announced his resignation at a Madison City Council meeting, citing his decision to relocate closer to his work in Edwardsville, where he is the Madison County auditor.

"I've lived in Madison all my life and will always be home to me. However, my family has simply outgrown our current home and we took the opportunity to relocate in Edwardsville," Bathon said.

Kierski, who lives at 210 Washington Ave., will become the new city treasurer, effective Feb. 29. His appointment is for the remainder of a term ending in April 1993.

The 64-year-old Madisonian

recently retired from Magna Bank of Madison County, Granite City, after 30 years. He was assistant cashier and head teller at the First National Bank in Madison for nine years prior to his employment at Magna.

"I've known Mayor [John] Bellhoff for many years and told him that if the opportunity ever came to work for the citizens of Madison, I would like to," Kierski said.

Bellhoff was impressed with Kierski's banking background and his involvement in community affairs.

cam and city officials say the extensive permit application process now requires the Illinois Environmental Protection Agency — an agency with a record of being extremely cautious regarding hazardous materials — guarantees that the facility will be safe or it will not be built.

Asked during a break in the meeting, Bob Maxwell, manager for public relations at Granite City Steel, who appeared to EPA requirements, said he sees no need for worry as long as Eticam passes IEPA muster.

Reott said the facility is being built to comply with more stringent standards than yet adopted by the EPA.

Parents rally to Kids Radio

Area children have joined the effort to put "their" radio station back on the air.

Kids Radio, once known as the Imagination Station, signed off the air about 10 a.m. Monday because of lack of financial support.

"When do you tell a three-year-old? When he turns on the radio, it's just supposed to be there," said Tish, an employee at the station and former Granite City resident. "I finally told my son the station had been unplugged."

She said about six former employees went to work Tuesday to answer the telephones and the air.

"Right now, we're asking for people to call or write to let people know we have an audience out there," she said.

"Everyone in the business is number-oriented and we need to show we have numbers."

Elementary students in the Granite City area have started passing petitions to show support for the station.

The possibility of passing the petitions was discussed at a meeting of Granite City school principals, according to Richard Brinkhoff, director of elementary education.

Parents in the schools are discouraged because of troubles "drawing the line," Brinkhoff said, and he said the principals agreed to keep the no-petition policy in this case.

Instead, Brinkhoff said, it was decided that a

Man recovers from accident, now faces homicide charge

By Mike Myers
Staff writer

A Granite City man who "miraculously" recovered after an auto accident last May now faces homicide charges as a result of the same accident.

William V. Knapp, 54, of the 4100 block of Melrose Avenue was charged Tuesday in warrants issued by Madison County State's Attorney Bill Haines with two counts of reckless driving.

Knapp was the driver of a car that collided with a train May 6 at a crossing near the A.O. Smith Corp. plant on Melrose Avenue. Two passengers in the car, Frank E. Bury Jr., 34, of Madison and Ronald J. Habs, 25, of Granite City were killed in the crash.

Knapp, who was allegedly under the influence of alcohol at the time of the accident, suffered serious injuries.

Postmortem tests by the Madison County medical examiner indicated Bury and Habs had also been intoxicated. The three men were reportedly friends and were working together at Midwest Drum Co.

Capt. Kip Pomeroy of the Granite City Police Department, which investigated the accident, said the reason charges were not filed earlier was that Knapp's medical prognosis was not good enough to prosecute.

Nursing home cites extenuating factors

By Randy Vaughn

Colonial Care Center, Granite City, is "not totally responsible" for an occurrence that led to a $5,000 fine, a care center spokesman said this week.

The fine was levied as an estimate of the exposure of a 79-year-old center resident who apparently had wandered away from the home. The Illinois Department of Public Health fined the center for failing to take protective measures to ensure the safety of a patient.

The center spokesman said an estimate of the circumstances in the incident in the presence of a temporary cleaning firm at the center on Oct. 31, the day the woman left the center.

"That was the difference between her and all other," the spokesman said.

The center is appealing the Illinois Department of Public Health fine levied Jan. 21.

Velma F. Hurst left the center in the late afternoon or the evening of Oct. 31 and was found dead from exposure on the morning of Nov. 1 in a muddy field across the hill from the center, the IDPH said.

The center will appeal the fine because a temporary cleaning service had been hired and was working at the center on the morning of Oct. 31, the spokesman said, indicating that this could have been a factor in the resident having access to the outside.

The spokesman also questioned the need for the fine, noting that all employees who were on duty that evening to provide visual observation of exits have been terminated and are no longer employed at the center.

with the fire departments that serve Eticam's plant in Rhode Island and was told there "is on the cutting edge of technology and is probably years ahead of regulations."

The chief said he was particularly impressed with Eticam's modeling of "worst-case scenarios" and preparation for potential accidents.

Louise Wade, the city's civil defense director, is responsible for the city's emergency operations plan for disasters. She also said she is concerned about the Eticam facility but "not overly concerned."

Wade said that, in her understanding of the facility, it is a very controlled atmosphere that doesn't involve highly combustible materials, so there is no possibility of an explosion.

She said there is a possibility that a chemical reaction could occur, but that is only a remote possibility, so she wouldn't rate it at the top of the list of dangers in the city.

Wallace also said Eticam is not at the top of his list of worries.

"I think if people knew what is being transported though here in trucks every day, I'm sure they would be up in arms. I shudder to think about what's coming through on rail cars," Wallace said.

Under the "catch-all" category of hazardous waste, Wallace said some structures in the city contain some sort of hazardous material.

"All of the industries do, and a lot of the homes. Of course, a oline and diesel fuel fall under that category."

Because it contains rather large quantities of radioactive materials, Eticam's hospital, Wallace said, is possible under some far-fetched catastrophic scenario for St. Elizabeth Medical Center to become a major threat to community.

He stressed that the fire department works closely with Air Products and St. Elizabeth and is entirely satisfied with their safety planning.

Because they are the first ones in, Wallace said, firefighters have more cause to worry about these remote possibilities than the "asbestos bloom." But, he said, firefighters tend to be "more pragmatic" about them.

"There will be accidents and, when they happen, you deal with them. You can't take these things for granted, but you can't be overly concerned, either."

letter would be sent on behalf of the approximately 4,000 elementary school children, showing support for the station. He said he and Superintendent Gib Walmsley signed the letter.

Meiba Anthony, composter of WXJO-FM, said, "We're getting a lot of calls from kids and parents. They're sad and very angry about the whole situation."

Anthony said the station is now trying to raise money.

"We're trying to raise money of buying the Bethalto Broadcast Corp. of Edwardsville," Anthony said. "We had arrangements to close on the deal when a couple of investors pulled out."

Anthony said Kids Radio at 95.5 FM was the only 24-hours-a-day station directed exclusively at children under the age of 12.

The station, which plays on the air for 10 months, was known for its cast of zany, friendly personalities such as Sam 'N' Eggs, Sam, Sunshine Suzy and Jamie Jojo.

Along with children's songs and storytelling, the station featured interactive word and math games and brain teasers for listeners to call in answers.

"I believe (Knapp) didn't intend for this to happen," she said. "But, because he was driving, he has to bear the responsibility for the deaths. I believe that, just as I believe that if it had been my brother driving and (Knapp) had died it would have been my brother's responsibility."

As a part of the permit review process, Eticam was asked to generate disaster scenarios which could cause an environmental threat. Among such possibilities would be a jet airplane crashing into the building and exploding.

"You would have to level the building for any of these scenarios to be a realistic possibility," Reott said.

Another, less unlikely, possibility would be a tornado ripping the building apart and mixing chemicals that are located in different rooms.

"But in that case, the rate of dispersion (of gases into the atmosphere) is so great, the incident would not be hazardous," Reott said.

Fire Chief Jerry Waldron and Regional Wastewater Treatment Plant Superintendent Terry Kraham said the materials in question already exist in the regional treatment plant.

Andria expressed concern that the plant would be located about a half-mile from Prather Elementary School.

"There is no way to evacuate a school of 900 children" in time in the event of an accident,

"Andria said.

Alderman Dan Partney said he is less concerned about potential land or water pollution than about air contamination.

In the case of an outside spill of a tanker truck, he said, the downwind travel time for contaminants is a matter of minutes.

"We all know accidents happen because they aren't planned (for) — they're accidents," Partney said.

"Water vaporization ... of cyanide gas ... is a concern."

"The city must implement a plan to handle evacuation (in the event of) an emission," Partney said.

Reached by telephone Wednesday, Deputy Chief George Noble of the Warwick, R.I., Fire Department said there have been no accidents since the Eticam facility there, and that the company has been very cooperative in assisting his staff with training to deal with a potential emergency.

"What you have to understand is that the facility doesn't handle extremely hazardous materials," Noble said.

"This may be one zone that is being hazarded as far as an accident, but we're not talking about Dow or some other company that deals with serious chemicals."

Andria questioned a newspaper story that reported several city officials visited the Warwick plant in 1985.

"The plant didn't open until 1986," Andria said.

Donnally explained that the facility was licensed in 1986, when the Rhode Island Department of Environmental Management tightened standards, but had been in operation prior to the licensing requirement. He confirmed that city officials were telling the truth when they said they had visited the plant.

Bar poll opposes Weber

Former Madison County prosecutor and best-selling author Don Weber is getting bad reviews from some lawyers in his race for Illinois Supreme Court justice.

Weber received a "strongly not recommended" score in an Illinois State Bar Association poll released Monday.

His 50.35 percent approval rating was the second lowest of 73 judicial candidates statewide in the March 7 primary election.

Mount Carmel lawyer John Rhine, Weber's opponent for the Republican nomination in the 5th Judicial District, received a "recommended" rating of 73.24.

Weber fired back at his critics.

"Bar polls are not meaningful. They are merely an attempt by insiders to control the selection of judges," he said. "Bad judges, on the other hand, are frequently highly rated in bar polls."

He noted that five Cook County judges had received recommended ratings several years ago by the Chicago Bar Association poll and were later convicted of felonies under an investigation of court corruption.

Weber said he and "many of my friends" do belong to the state bar association because it is "very liberal" (and) defense-oriented.

"A good prosecutor is seldom popular with attorneys," Weber said, listing awards and honors he had received for prosecuting murder cases.

One of those cases, which led to a murder conviction against Paula Sizemore, was detailed in "Precious Victims," a book Weber co-authored.

A score of 70 was needed to get a recommendation rating in the poll, at least 50 needed for highly recommended.

The three candidates for the Democratic nomination for the 5th District Supreme Court seat all received recommended ratings in the poll. Charles Chapman of Glen Carbon scored 85.74; Moses Harrison of Collinsville notched 84.75; and Carl Becker of Red Bud got 80.57.

Hoffman given IEA endorsement

State Rep. Jay Hoffman, D-Collinsville, has been endorsed by the Illinois Education Committee of the Illinois Education Association in his re-election bid.

IEA officials cited Hoffman's legislative record and commitment to education.

Hoffman, completing his first term as representative, faces a challenge from Ellen Stimson of Edwardsville for the Democratic nomination in the newly drawn 112th District.

"It is always rewarding to endorse an incumbent for election," said Jenece Brown, a member of the IEA's board.

Psalms 20:7 "Some trust in chariots, and some in horses; but we will remember the name of the Lord our God."

We will remember the name of the Lord our God. And why not? God has highly exalted Christ our Savior, and we know that Christ is above every name! That is the name of Jesus, every knee would bow and every tongue would confess that He is Lord, to the glory of God.

There is power and authority in the name of Jesus. Christ said believers could call His name, speak with tongues, cast out devils. He told us to ask anything in His name and He would do it.

With promises like these, from the Word of God, surely we will have no problem remembering the name of the Lord.

Will you remember? Today?

People's Law School begins tonight

By Nicole Vaughn
Staff writer

Whether it's tips on tax returns or where to turn for help with mounting bills, the "People's Law School" may be able to help.

"We tried to look at what's happening in the world today," said Assistant Illinois Attorney General Dennis Orsey, who coordinates the four-week program.

Sponsored by the Madison County and Illinois State Bar Associations, as well as Student Legal Services at Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville, the free program will begin tonight at 7 p.m.

A different program will be held from 7 to 9 p.m. each Thursday this month in the Lovejoy Library auditorium at SIUE.

While the program is free, participants are being asked to pre-register. To do that, the number is 692-3358.

The sessions are being presented by local attorneys who have donated their time for the project.

Orsey said many of the topics are timely. For example, one program is on preparing tax returns.

Another, on living wills, will reflect changes in the law since last year.

A program on buying and selling real estate can help first-time buyers read the fine print, and provide refinancing information for those who already own their homes.

For those who are unable to attend, Cencos can be telephoned at 692-3358 and will broadcast them at a later date, Orsey said.

The scheduled programs for "People's Law School" are:

March 5: "Making the Legal System Work for You," by Dennis Orsey, "How to Prepare Your Returns," by attorney Mark Goldenberg.

March 12: "Estate Planning Tips," by attorney Tom Hill. "Bankruptcy and Debt Relief," by attorney Jerry Walters.

March 19: "Living Wills and Durable Power of Attorney," by attorney William Sherwood. "Court Enforcement of DUI Laws," by Associate Judge Michael J. Meehan.

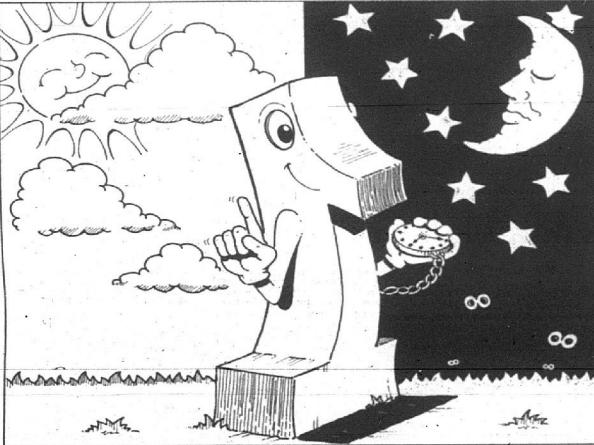

March 26: "Buying and Selling Real Property," by attorney Paul Lauber. "Landlord and Tenant Rights," by attorney Brian Konzen.

Plant will be good for area

For more than six years the residents of Granite City have waited for someone to stand up against construction of a $10 million hazardous-waste treatment plant off Illinois 3.

Public hearings brought little negative attention during the design and proposal stage as everyone waited for someone else to speak out.

City officials and business leaders were the first to question the safety and impact of the facility and all left satisfied that the plant would be a plus for the area.

So now, in what is a final step, the Illinois Environmental Protection Agency has approved a permit for the plant. It is that approval that has inspired city residents to respond that they want it stopped.

Those residents don't want to hear about what the city officials found. They don't want to know that the EPA's standards are extremely restrictive regarding what is hazardous, what can be harmful and what precautions are required.

The EPA will be accepting input from area residents until March 9, but only those responses that address the technical aspects of the plant will be considered. Concerns about two-headed children and imminent holocaust for the area have already been considered by the EPA.

The agency's worst-case scenario involves a jetliner crashing directly into the plant and exploding on impact. Even in such an extreme case, the plant passes EPA's requirements.

Those who have been a silent segment until now and will make passionate pleas for attention as the plant proceeds should direct their energy to the positive impact the facility will have on Granite City, including an estimated 150 jobs, and additional industries being attracted to this area because of the new plant.

Concerns about environmental impact are very important, but they have been addressed and will be continually monitored as Eticam provides a much-needed boost to Granite City's economy.

Republicans battling in state

(This article was written by Robert Estill for the Copley News Service.)

With President George Bush's hopes for a quick knockout of embattled conservative Patrick Buchanan felled by New Hampshire voters, Illinois campaign directors for both GOP contenders are preparing for a Prairie State slugfest.

"It put us on the map," said George Grey, Buchanan's one-man organization who has been running the Illinois campaign from his Oak Lawn home. "It propelled us to have a full-fledged campaign."

Grey said he believes Buchanan will at least match, in the Illinois "beauty contest" (non-binding preference) vote between Bush and Buchanan, the 37 percent showing the columnist-commentator got in New Hampshire.

With the Illinois primary, the recent law school graduate claimed Buchanan may score an "outright win" in a state that is the home of three of Bush's cabinet members and his chief of staff and where the governor, Jim Edgar, is the state Bush campaign chairman.

Grey said he also intends to launch an apparently unprecedented write-in campaign to elect delegates in all 20 congressional districts. With 75 delegates to be elected, Buchanan has only 32 candidates and is represented by only eight districts.

With primary elections held earlier in two dozen states before the March 17 Illinois primary, Gene Reineke, executive director of Bush's Illinois campaign, contended he was not convinced Buchanan would survive to fight in Illinois.

Bush conceded the challenger's New Hampshire showing spurred Bush backsliders in Illinois to hasten preparations.

"I think what we need is that we're going to be prepared for a full-blown primary if it comes to that," said Reineke, who is taking a leave of absence as executive director of the Illinois GOP to direct the daily operations of the Bush campaign.

"I don't think it's going to come to that," Reineke continued. "I think we'll get to Illinois, he [Buchanan] will be knocked out of contention."

Reineke said Bush may be able to stop his rival by the "Super Tuesday" round of primaries and caucuses in 11 states on March 19. Reineke contrasted that the present vote shown in the Granite State will diminish in the southern states and in Illinois, where the unemployment rate dropped 1 percent last month.

While calling Bush's 53 percent of the vote in New Hampshire a "significant victory," Reineke said Buchanan's 37 percent finish is accelerating preparations to get a full campaign staff on board and to move to the primaries and wards statewide.

The Bush organization also will have ready a "voter contact" program that will include advertisements, direct mailings, telephone banks and canvassing — but will hold launching it until seeing what happens in some of the other states, Reineke said.

Having a presence in Illinois for a face-off in Illinois, Bush will do at least as well in the "beauty contest" as he did in New Hampshire, Reineke predicted. The numbers, Reineke added, are with Bush in the voting for Republican national convention delegates.

Bush is assured of having the 16 delegates chosen at large, but he has virtually all of the Illinois GOP hierarchy in his corner. Reineke predicted Bush will make a clean sweep and win all of the 75 delegates who will be elected in the state's 20 congressional districts.

Buchanan's chances of winning delegates as write-ins are "extremely slim." In a state where nearly 900,000 people voted in the 1988 GOP presidential election and where voters would have to write in both the name of the delegate candidate and Buchanan, Reineke said.

But there are other numbers that help Buchanan and the Democrats. The unemployment rate in Illinois was 8.2 percent in January, down a percent from December but still a point above the national average.

Concerns about the economy that aided Buchanan in New Hampshire are helping him in Illinois, too, Grey said.

He said the campaign is tapping an army of 1,900 volunteers — "middle class people who've never been involved in politics a day in their lives who want to help out."

Grey said Buchanan's New Hampshire showing will enable him to get an office and begin putting to work the people who have called and written offering support.

And the public will focus — as it did in New Hampshire — on the number of delegates elected but on how the candidates fare in the "beauty contest."

"If we get about 40 percent, the impact of that nationwide will be 'humongous' and will propel Buchanan on for the rest of the campaign," Grey said.

Rates Miles as qualified, dedicated

TO THE EDITOR:

The March primary election date is near. Besides being responsible for electing our party preference presidential candidate, we must choose local officials. In particular, I refer to County Board members.

I recommend that persons residing in County Board District 16 vote for the only truly qualified candidate running, the incumbent, Morris Miles.

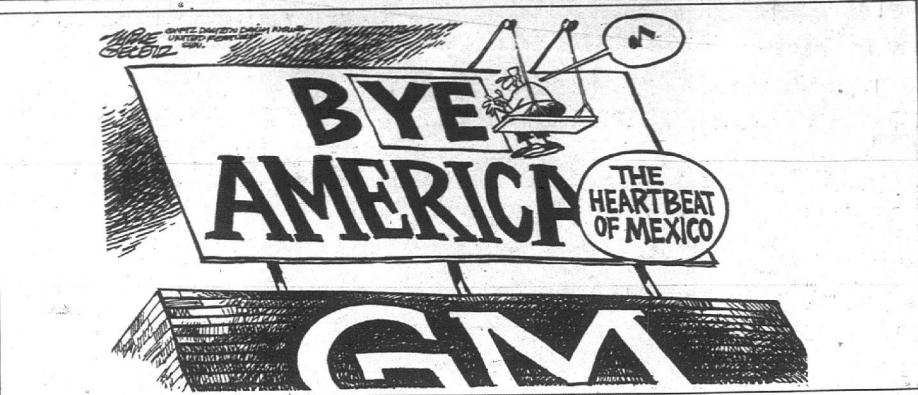

I have had the pleasure of living in County Board District 16 during Morris Miles' tenure in office and have also worked with him on various issues for improvement of our community.

Miles has proven himself to be sincerely committed to the people and issues of this district.

Morris Miles is the only genuinely qualified and experienced candidate running for this position. Return him to office on March 17 (punch 149).

Letters

Deadline set for election letters

In an effort to assure fairness, letters to the editor regarding the upcoming March 17 election will not be considered for publication if received after 5 p.m. March 6. Letters to the editor, however, will be printed after the March 12 edition, except for specific rebuttal letters to be published March 15.

Can't cut taxes

TO THE EDITOR:

Because of stragglers bearing to be good to be true, it probably isn't true.

I urge all voters in Madison County Board District 16 to seriously examine the past performance and qualifications of the candidates competing for the privilege of representing our district.

As usual, during political campaigns, issues that cannot be dealt with at the county level are being bantered about and, in some instances, used as part of the political platform.

Responsible voters must be extremely careful not to be "taken in" by candidates who believe they issue and misrepresent the qualifications or political savvy necessary to represent this district.

For example, in one case, we can write it off as lack of knowledge due to limited experience in the political arena.

Having a mere two years' experience as a precinct committee man does not give one the background, qualifications, or political savvy necessary to represent this district.

Third, he knows how to get things done. He is effective. The two of us are a good team for the state. And we have worked together well with House members of both political parties. You want more than nice speeches on television commercials from a public official? You want someone who can get a job done. Alan Dixon gets things done.

"Public service" is a phrase we use too easily. But Alan Dixon has provided it.

Voters here go to the polls to make a decision on the facts.

Carefully examine the qualifications and experience and then vote for the person who can most reasonably represent the needs of this district.

Hofeld responds

TO THE EDITOR:

In his recent letter to the editor, St. Clair County Board Chairman Tom Barcicewicz mistakenly stated that both St. Albin Dixon and I opposed the sale of a 40 percent share of McDonnell Douglas Corp. to Taiwan.

I certainly do oppose selling off our American technology to foreign interests. But Dixon has not. He endorsed the sale.

In a Nov. 25 article in which the headline read, "Dixon backs McDonnell-Taiwan deal," Dixon states that Dixon would look forward to welcoming the Taiwanese to Scott Air Force Base when the MD-12 is built there.

I and others pointed out that the deal could potentially undermine the American aerospace industry, cost U.S. jobs and threaten national security. And, lo and behold, Dixon denies he ever endorsed it.

This was another case of Dixon's short-term gain taking precedence over long-term goals.

Dixon's pockets are bulging with McDonnell Douglas funds, from campaign and PAC (political action committee) contributions, personal speaking fees and free travel, totaling more than $30,000.

This incident bears witness to Dixon's doublespeak throughout this campaign.

He says one thing in Chicago and another downstate, one thing before facing a serious challenge from me in the primary and another after I declared my candidacy.

The point is, Illinois needs a senator who will tell voters the truth, not one beholden to special interests who changes his politics on the issues whenever my wind changes direction.

AL HOFELD
Chicago

Simon for Dixon

TO THE EDITOR:

On March 17, the people of Illinois will choose the Democratic nominee for senator.

We have three able candidates from whom to choose, but the one I support is Sen. Alan Dixon.

Three things should be kept in mind by Illinois voters:

First, in all of his years in public service there has never been even one of wrongdoing. People may disagree with him on an issue — as I do occasionally — but no one has ever questioned his character or ethics.

Second, on issues important to Illinois — education, jobs, health care — he has been a constructive voice, an advocate with the Senate leadership.

Third, he knows how to get things done. He is effective. The two of us are a good team for the state. And we have worked together well with House members of both political parties. You want more than nice speeches on television commercials from a public official? You want someone who can get a job done. Alan Dixon gets things done.

Through the Humane Society's efforts, 637 homeless dogs and 372 abandoned cats were saved in 1991.

The Humane Society is now entering the second phase of its capital campaign to raise funds for a new building. Hopefully, with the help of generous individuals, more lives can be saved.

Favors Hawkins

TO THE EDITOR:

Voters of the 16th Madison County Board District, I would like to ask you to cast your vote for Helen Hawkins for Ward 1.

Helen is one of a few politicians who is as honest as you can get in all categories of any job she undertakes.

This would be a good time to elect someone as intelligent and dedicated as Helen Hawkins.

Please go to the polls on election day, and I hope one of your votes is for Helen (punch 142).

H.A. "DOC" WINKELMAN
Grande City

Ideal candidate

TO THE EDITOR:

Helen Hawkins is enthusiastic for clean air, clean water and clean land. We need her on the Madison County Board.

We think the presence of women on the County Board is important, and Helen from District 16 is ideal. She is an independent voice and would be free to vote for what the majority of citizens desire.

Punch 142 for Helen Hawkins in the March 17 primary.

Making memories

High school journalists record school-days' events

By Cori Elmore and Melissa Lynch

A high school yearbook or newspaper can be a treasure chest of memories, and the students who prepare them make many memories of their own.

March 26 is Newspaper in Education Week. Student journalists who prepare their newspaper and yearbooks learn not from what they read in other publications, but from what they produce.

The Granite City High School yearbook is usually between 300 and 400 pages. Staff members of the "Warrior" have a 90-minute class period daily devoted to working on the yearbook.

In addition to the time spent in class, it takes staff members to spend hours after school working to meet deadlines.

Staff members agree that deadlines are frustrating, but also agree that they are proud of what they have accomplished once the book comes in.

"It gets tiring staying after school working on the book because we have a deadline to meet, the editing hours and doing lots of homework," said Heather Sanders, a member of the Warrior yearbook staff.

In order to ensure a delivery in March, the yearbook must be completed by mid-February.

This gives the junior members of the staff an opportunity to begin planning next year's book.

Attendance was Angela and Sara Kromrak, Florence Kierski, Rose Krystyna, Victoria Krystyna, Irene Kieserman, Lynne Whiting and Shanielle Kubeski, Carol Robertson, Connie Smith, Sharon Winterbottom, Jan and Emily Vance, Sherry and Melinda Vandeveer, Priscilla Volesek, Joan Hertwick and Jennifer, Kathy Dohnal and Linda, Helen Knopik, Virginia Winterbottom, Jane Wandoleski, Robert Jurek, Julie White, Ann Krystyna, Gerni Mender and Toni, Maryann Freyman, Denise Echoff, Doris Banach, Missy DuVall.

The staff at Madison consists of seven students who volunteer their time to give input and new ideas to help improve their yearbook.

Barbara Cox is in her first year as yearbook sponsor and said she is open to new ideas, and hopes to involve more senior members in the production.

"We're all learning together, and trying to make this the students' yearbook," Cox said.

This year's book is a straightforward picture yearbook, she said.

"Since Madison is a small high school, there is difficulty in getting together. The students are usually involved in many other things," Cox said.

The students devote time to the project whenever they can, she said, coming in during free periods to identify students, alphabetizing pictures and taking photos whenever possible.

"It makes you feel good to see your stories in print," said staff member Priscilla Brooks.

Unlike the yearbook at the high school, there are no advertisements in the newspaper because there really is no cost to the school. After the stories are written, staff uses paper from the school's computer lab.

The office workers then run off the copies of the paper and students sell the papers for 15 cents.

The small staff admits that it does get hectic around deadlines, but they try to stay on schedule and keep their cool.

"Because of the small staff, making good things go without mention in the newspaper," said Paul Macios, co-sponsor of the newspaper at Madison High School.

At Granite City High School, 22 students publish a monthly newspaper. The Granite City High World is an eight-page, tabloid-size newspaper put together entirely by the students.

After learning the basic skills needed to write effectively, students can take an hour class devoted entirely to the production of the high school newspaper.

Two editors-in-chief are selected by Antonio Betancourt, newspaper advisor, and the other editors are then selected by the three.

The editors assign stories and photographs and design and lay out pages. All students write stories, take photographs, and sell newspapers.

The money collected from the sale of the papers, which are sold for 25 cents, and for advertisements are used to pay the printer.

All students agree that putting out a monthly newspaper emphasizes the importance of deadlines.

Co-editor-in-chief Mike Chapman likes deadlines because "a week before deadline you feel like you're ahead and everyone relaxes, then you miss deadline."

Alyssa Aud, an opinions editor of the High World, said getting everyone to get everything in on deadline can be frustrating, and an added burden for the editors.

Junior high students also get opportunity

Future journalists have the opportunity to test the publication waters in junior high schools in the Granite City School District.

Students in Alice Shardon's eighth grade Accelerrated Language Arts at Grigsby Junior High have started a project that is unique. Students submit articles for the "Gator Gazette." Each student is required to submit at least two articles per grading period.

Alice Shardon, sponsor of the "Gator Gazette," assigns the stories and checks for grammar. She then sends them to Ron Ward at the Granite City School Board office to print the papers.

"I treat it as homework. Most of my extracurriculars are on the weekend, so I don't have a problem balancing that," said Sara Rainer, an eighth grade student at Grigsby.

At Grigsby, the student council is responsible for the publication of a yearbook. Students volunteer to work on the weekends and holidays at the sponsor's home.

"There are 10 to 15 students that work on the yearbook," said Lisa Talleay, sponsor of the yearbook.

It's a 64-page yearbook that includes pictures and writing. The yearbook sells for $15.

"Most kids are active in other things, so we don't spend a lot of extra time on the book," Lilleys said.

At Coolidge Junior High School students volunteer time and efforts to help produce the paper.

"Students take pictures, design collages, identify pictures, survey students and interview teachers. They also sell candy and soda at sports events to supplement the sale of the books."

The staff meets on the weekends and holidays.

"This is what you have to do, so you do it," said Angie Grindstof, an eighth grade student at Coolidge.

YOUTH FOCUS: When should you walk away from a fight?

(Asked of eighth-grade students at Venice Junior High School, Madison Middle School and Grigsby Junior High School)

Aetheus Byrd, Venice
"You should walk away when there are weapons involved because someone can get hurt or killed. Twenty five percent of the people who are involved in violence are killed everyday. The population is growing but slowly, and we need to stop the violence and start 'kickin' the education.' There are other nations that somehow get along. We need to leave our weapons alone and keep our nation strong. So please stop the violence."

Donald Harris, Venice
"I should walk away from a fight when I have thought of the consequences, or corporal punishment that will be inflicted upon me by the person I am fighting with. As a principal, teacher, or parent I also think a person should not get in the position in the beginning, but if it should happen, a smart, intelligent and bright person would try to reason or work on the problem with that person. I feel that it is always best to walk away from a fight if at all possible."

Carl Carnes, Venice
"You should walk away from a fight before it begins. First, all you should really be fighting in a situation that can get you seriously hurt. But you can get hurt in any fight, especially if someone is going to jump you or have a weapon. The best thing to do is not to get in a fight at all."

Aetheus Byrd

Tereezza Gambrell, Venice
"I think the most important reason you should walk away from a fight is if the fight is over a petty argument. For example, he said — she said" would be a petty reason. What I mean is that you tell someone one said something about you. One said something about you. It's petty, because it may not be true. Petty reasons are why I would walk away from a fight."

Miranda Mosby, Venice
"You should walk away from a fight when the person has a weapon. If the fight is really nothing, don't fight at all. Some people aren't even worth fighting. If there is a fight, you must try to walk away when weapons are involved because someone could get hurt or even killed."

Donald Harris

Anthony Smith, Madison
"I think it's a way to fight that had to do with drugs; drugs are the most stupid thing to fight over."

Leteasha Haynes, Madison
"I think you should walk away from a fight when you first see it forming. I also think it depends on the situation. If it is not worth arguing or fighting over, then it would be best to just walk away."

Christina Short, Madison
"You should walk away from a fight when there's no reason to be fighting. You should also walk away when weapons are involved because someone could get hurt or even killed."

Stephanie Kohs, Granite City
"When challenged to a fight, it is best to ignore those who are making the threats. More likely they are just acting 'cool' and those will probably blow over. So when you get lied some dumb name! Would you rather be called names or get yourself in trouble and possibly hurt? If it does not blow over, you should seek someone whom you think will be of help. Some possibilities of these are teachers, parents, counselors, and principals."

Jamie Wallace, Granite City
"You should walk away from a fight before it even starts. But if another person starts hitting you, you have every right to hit back."

Carl Carnes

"The time to walk away from a fight is before it even starts. Fighting doesn't prove anything. So you can have someone really bad. What satisfaction can you get out of that? So in my opinion fighting is stupid. You are even in a situation where you can't win. You can run away as fast as you can."

Beth Hecker, Granite City

"I believe you should walk away from a fight before one even starts. If you are involved in a disagreement with someone else, you should try to talk it out. I think fighting proves nothing except your stupidity. For the more intelligent person uses his brain instead of his fist."

Sara Rainer, Granite City

"You always know when to walk away from a fight. You should walk away from a fight if you're fighting over meaningless things. If you start fights for no reason, then why would you do it?!! You are people and not animals. You are not like animals who get into a lot of trouble over nothing. Another good reason to walk away from a fight is when you know you're going to get your butt kicked. So you should know when to walk away from a fight."

"The best time to walk away from a fight is before it even starts. Fighting doesn't prove anything like your manhood; all it proves is who is dumb enough to get into one. All a fight will do is make matters worse. Fighting can result in a serious injury to you or the other person. I couldn't live having put a kid in the hospital or him putting me in the hospital. You may get in trouble from the police or your principal. Afterwards you look bad in your teachers' eyes, your parents' eyes and most importantly in your own eyes. Your friends will make fun of you if you took a couple of punches. You should always walk away from a fight before it starts because it will never end."

Matt Janaase, Granite City

"When to walk away from a fight is quite a dilemma. First let it be said that fighting has never solved a problem. If a person is overstressed, try another option, such as discussing a misunderstanding, ignoring a problem or avoiding the situation, you may have no other choice. The only thing that should a fight take place and only in self-defense. My opinion is there are very few reasons to fight and most should be walked away from. It takes a real man to walk away."

Riverboat gambling battle continues

By Jeffrey Peyton
Staff writer

The continuing battle for riverboat gambling licenses for the East St. Louis area has prompted a verbal feud between a longtime state senator and the East St. Louis mayor.

Mayor Gordon Bush and state Sen. Kenneth Hall are at odds over whether East St. Louis or Sauget will get the first local gambling license.

Bush accused Hall of stabbing East St. Louis in the back by supporting Arch Newkirk's Crusties' Sauget's riverboat gambling application — instead of East St. Louis'.

"Sen. Hall has betrayed his city," Bush said. "He convinced me that he is in favor of this going bankrupt. And I fail to understand why he would want that."

Hall shrugged off Bush's comments, saying that after 27 years at the statehouse, one bit of bad-mouthing wasn't going to bother him.

"East St. Louis is a small part of my district," Hall said. "I have to represent the whole district."

Hall asked how it would look to him to have Crusties' application denied. "It would go on sale at a later date, and will be approximately four to five weeks before each trip."

As in the past, the cost of the trips will be nominal. Residents of the Park District will be given priority, but non-residents may be placed on a waiting list.

Many non-residents have made trips in the past, as residents are offered to residents for approximately two weeks and, if not filled, non-residents are called in.

Tickets go on sale at the Park office at 8 a.m. the day each trip is sold and the entire cost of the trip must be paid at the time of reservation is made. Each person can only purchase one room reservation which can accommodate up to four persons.

"They've had two years to get a license," Hall said. "In November, Missouri will vote on riverboat gambling. Is it fair for other communities to suffer because East St. Louis wants Sauget to win?"

Hall had stated that delaying Sauget's license to give East St. Louis a head start will hurt the region's chances of getting a boat in the water before St. Louis' operations get under way next year.

"Hall's remarks have made us look competitive," economic advisor C. Michael said. "That was never our intent."

"But when the state loaned us money, I assumed they wanted it paid back. No other revenue source is available to East St. Louis," Milford said.

Bush said revenues from an East St. Louis riverboat gambling operation would first go to pay off $3 million in emergency loans from the state and offset the need to borrow an additional $30 million.

For them, Bush said receipts would go toward lowering the tax burden on city residents and pay for increased city services.

"Hall pretends he is unaware of the circumstances as a riverboat would bring to either city," Bush said. "He shows no understanding of how economic development works in this region."

City manager Frank Watson said what happens on the riverfront will determine what happens to the city.

Echoing Milford's sentiments, Watson said a riverboat casino was the only viable "catalyst" for recovery in sight.

Watson also challenged Sauget's offer to share its wealth with other communities.

"It has been implied a number of times that East St. Louis will receive at least $1 million a year from Sauget if their license is approved," Watson said. "But there is no promise, no guarantee of any money."

"It depends on their expenses," Milford said.

es," Milford said. "Originally, they were talking of bonds and loans, and they are also talking about replacing police cars. Any money they were going to share certainly won't go to that."

Bush called Sauget's offer to share its income a bribe, and said that like most "something for nothing" deals, the Sauget offer would probably turn out to be too good to be true.

Gary Gill, chief financial officer for Middleton Investments, sole owner of Arch View Casino Cruises, could not be reached for comment.

"The senator wants to call us out before we even get up to bat," Bush said. "But we're going to bat, and we're going to hit a home run."

Belle's success still setting records

SPRINGFIELD — The Alton Belle Casino's revenue and attendance continue to climb, setting new records in February.

According to a report released Tuesday by the Illinois Gaming Board, the Alton Belle, inched to $86,000 during the month in slot video poker, cards and craps, the highest monthly total since the boat started operating in September.

It was the second straight month of record revenues, topping January's take of $3,733,465.

The Belle also set a new monthly attendance record in February of 64,132, beating the previous high of 62,344 in October.

Gambling loss per passenger also continues to climb, with a 36% average for February, up from $8 in January, and boosting the average since operations began to $56.

The Par-A-Dice casino in Peoria, about twice as large as the Belle, continues to outdraw the Belle, although the Belle casino makes more money per passenger.

The Par-A-Dice set its own records in February, with 91,118 passengers dropping $4,084,751, or an average of $53 each.

Total gaming revenue reported in Alton Belle for the Sept. 10 launch through February now exceed $18.4 million. Last July boat owners told the Gambling Board they needed to make $10.3 million in the first full year to break even.

District plans weekend trips

The Granite City Park District has announced the dates for the three-day weekend trips to be made from May through December. Several one-day trips will be offered, but none will be finalized at this time.

The first weekend trip will be May 8, 9, and 10 to the Huntsville, Ala., area. The highlight of this trip will be visiting the U.S. Space and Rocket Center, America's largest space attraction.

Another new trip this year will be on June 12, 13 and 14 to Columbia, Tenn., for the Riverfront Celebration. This is an event that includes spectacular displays and entertainment, along with international shopping and dining food.

On July 10, 11 and 12 the trip will be to Bartlesville, Okla., for a different type trip. There will be visits to an Indian Guide Center, 5.8-acre wildlife preserve, candle factory, oil well, etc., along with a hay ride and chuck wagon meal.

August 14, 15 and 16 will be the annual trip to Wisconsin. New attractions have been added to this year's agenda with motel accommodations again at the Swiss-style Chalet Landhaus in Branson, Mo.

Branson, Mo., will be the attraction on Sept. 18, 19 and 20. Tickets have been obtained for the Grand Palace Theatre and Mel Tillis new show house.

The Christmas weekend trip this year will be made Dec. 4, 5 and 6 in order to see the Christmas displays in Nashville, Tenn.
